B. PROJECT DESCRIPTION

This case study assignment is designed for students in the Diploma in Gender Studies course to apply their knowledge of gender and intersectionality to a real-world scenario on the theme “Exploring Gender and Intersectionality in the Workplace.” Students will explore the complex dynamics of gender, intersectionality, and social structures in a workplace setting. The assignment encourages critical thinking, analysis, and discussion on topics related to gender equality, diversity, and inclusion.

C. Project Details

Part 1: Case Selection: Students are required to select two real-world workplace cases or scenarios that involve issues related to gender, intersectionality, and diversity. The case could be from a workplace, a news article, a documentary, or any other credible source. The case should highlight the experiences of individuals at various intersections of gender, such as race, ethnicity, sexual orientation, ability, and socio-economic status.

Part 2: Case Analyses: once students have selected a case, they must analyze it through the lens of gender and intersectionality. This analysis should address the following aspects:

- a. Identify the key gender-related issues in the case, including gender stereotypes, discrimination, or disparities.
- b. Explore how intersectionality influences the experiences of individuals involved in the case.
- c. Examine the organizational culture and policies that may have contributed to the issues described.
- d. Discuss the potential consequences, both positive and negative, of these gender-related issues on the individuals and the organization as a whole.

Part 3: Recommendations and Solutions: In the final part of the assignment, students will develop recommendations and solutions to address gender-related issues and foster a more inclusive workplace environment. They should consider strategies that organizations can implement to promote gender equality and diversity. Students should also discuss the potential challenges and barriers to implementing these recommendations.
